The legendary Rijksmuseum garden is always a safe bet if you want to catch monumental art, and sculptural works in the garden are always free. To celebrate the 60th birthday of Holland's most famous cartoon export, Nijntje (the adorable bunny known as Miffy outside the Netherlands), the garden currently features two giant customized versions of the rabbit by Dutch artists Rob Scholte and Irma Boom. They're part of a wider (and also free) Miffy Art Parade throughout the city and beyond. On the wide, Hendrik Berlage–designed avenues of the monied residential districts to the south of Amsterdam, the biannual ArtZuid sculpture trail features striking works by eminent sculptors including Tony Cragg and Frank Stella.
